Abstract: According to the 11th State of Poverty Report, presented last week in the Senate by EAPN, coinciding with the commemoration of the 17th International Day for the Eradication of Poverty, almost one in ten children and adolescents suffer severe material deprivation in Spain. According to the document, severe material deprivation - i.e. not being able to enjoy a meal of meat, chicken or fish every two days, not being able to keep your home at an adequate temperature or not being able to meet unforeseen expenses - has increased by almost 50% in the last year, affecting 3.3 million people in Spain. These figures are even more worrying in the case of people living in single-parent families, where one in seven are affected by material deprivation, a figure that rises to one in four in the case of foreigners from non-EU countries.
