SUMMARY

Introduction

The Adorer Charism has as its mission the following four points: the liberation, personal integration, promotion and social reintegration of women exploited by prostitution or victims of various forms of slavery. We are also responsible for the defense of their rights and the knowledge of the social problems that concern them, as well as the critical analysis of reality.

In this monograph, we collect materials such as articles, official documents, guides, websites and audiovisuals that will help us to better understand this social drama.

Title: Chicas nuevas 24 horas.

Year: 2015.

Synopsis: Chicas nuevas 24 horas show us step by step how to set up a business that moves 32 billion dollars a year. A business in which everything is profit, because a woman's body, if she is young and well cared for, can be sold on multiple occasions during the same day, even against her will. Do you want to learn this business? Do you want to be part of it? Or do you just want to watch? Chicas nuevas 24 horas is not a unique documentary for mixing the fake documentary with the investigation through five countries, but for placing the point of view in the perverse look of the big business that means sexual slavery Mabel Lozano.

Title: Biografía del cadáver una mujer.

Year: 2020

Synopsis: A trafficked woman. Shot dead. She looks at us. She speaks to us. It concerns us. Since 2000 more than 45 women in prostitution have been murdered in Spain. Tortured. Stabbed. Drowned. Beheaded. Burned. Thrown into the void. Three had been granted protected witness status. Yet they could not escape a brutal death. This is the story of one of them.

Title: Iraq's secret sex trade.

Year: 2019

Synopsis: An investigation into Shia clerics at some of Iraq's holiest shrines reveals a network of women and young girls, trapped into prostitution at the hands of a religious elite. Undercover footage and testimony from victims reveal how they procure young women for male clients. A documentary that examines the religious cover that legitimizes some of the prostitution in Iraq. Unscrupulous clerics force young girls, war widows and young divorced women to offer themselves to men for their sexual enjoyment, sometimes for only a few hours. Some Muslim clerics in Iraq carry out this controversial religious practice: pleasure marriage, which allows a widowed or unmarried man to have legal sex with a temporary wife provided by the man of god, acting as a pimp.

Title: Voces (Against Trafficking in Women).

Year: 2007

Synopsis: The documentary tries to bring the problem of trafficking in women for the purpose of sexual exploitation, known as slavery in the 21st century, closer to the public. Through the testimonies of twelve women of different nationalities who have had the courage to tell us about their experiences, the documentary tries to expose all the elements involved in this complex problem, whose figures are alarming and growing. We have travelled to Romania to obtain some of these heart-wrenching testimonies, the country where most of these women currently come from. We have also relied on the voices of experts on the issue of trafficking, such as police, civil guards, judges, and NGOs such as APRAMP and Proyectos Esperanza, who bring us their extensive experience.

Title: Very young girls.

Year: 2008

Synopsis: Very Young Girls is a documentary directed by David Schisgall and Nina Alvarez that shows the lives of a group of African-American girls in prostitution on the streets of New York. Their story is particularly complex, as they were recruited by pimps when they were between 13 and 14 years old. However, even though they are the victims within the prostitution system, they are treated as adult criminals by the police. The documentary consists of interviews with the protagonists in which they recount how they were caught and put on the street for the first time, as well as the terrible experiences they went through during those years. Also, this piece includes recordings made by the pimps themselves, who are unaware of the real purpose of the documentary and think they are recording their day-to-day lives for a television program.
